

TRUMP

MY FIGHT
TO MAKE AMERICA
GREAT AGAIN

Change has to come from outside our very broken system.

For, in order to attack this plague seriously, enormous sacrifices and works just as great are necessary.

My contract with the American voter will restore honesty, accountability & CHANGE to Washington!

This is also the only solution that allows a nation to find its daily bread in the inner circle of its domestic economy.

The era of division is coming to an end. We will create a new future of American Unity.

Is the inability of a leader proved by the fact that he does not succeed in winning the majority of a crowd of people for a certain idea, dumped together by more or less fine accidents?

I'm not a politician, and have never wanted to be one. But when I saw the trouble our country was in, I knew I couldn't stand by and watch any longer.

Voluntary fulfillment of duty has always determined the actions of the best; but not those of the average.

I will be the best by far in fighting terror.

I am asking the American people to rise above the noise and the clutter of our broken politics, and to embrace that great faith and optimism that has always been the central ingredient in the American character. I am asking you to dream big.

Today it is imperative first to restore to the people, in the form of the free power State, that strength which is the presumption for the later carrying-out of a practical foreign policy signifying the maintenance, promotion, and sustenance of our people for the future.

The forgotten man and woman will never be forgotten again. We will all come together as never before.

We must stop the crime and killing machine that is illegal immigration. Rampant problems will only get worse. Take back our country!

Now there are different ways to reconcile oneself with this disagreeable, even terrible fact: some do not see anything at all, or rather they do not want to see anything: this is of course by far the most simple and cheapest 'attitude'; others wrap themselves in a saintly cloak of prudishness that is as ridiculous as it is also mendacious; they only talk of this entire domain as if it were a great sin, and, above all, in the presence of every sinner caught in the act, they express their deeply felt inner indignation in order then to close their eyes in pious disgust towards this vicious disease and to ask God (if possible after their own death) to rain fire and brimstone upon this Sodom and Gomorrah in order once again to make an elevating example of this disgraceful mankind. A third group see very well the terrible consequences which this disease is bound to, and will, bring with it, but nevertheless they only shrug their shoulders, convinced that they can do nothing against this danger, anyhow, so that one has to let things go as they are going.

These are tough problems that require tough leadership.

The safety and security of the homeland must be the overriding objective of our leaders when it comes to our immigration policy.

In all cases which involve the fulfillment of apparently impossible demands or tasks, the entire attention of a people has to be united uniformly on this one question in such a manner as though indeed its existence or non-existence depended upon its solution. Only thus will one make a people willing and able to undertake truly great achievements and efforts.

Now, today's leaders must work to ensure that all of our people can live in safety, prosperity, equality and peace.

For this purpose one should have hammered into the people its evils as the most terrible misfortune in its full extent, and under application of all auxiliary measures, till the whole nation should have come to the conviction that upon the solution of this question really everything depends, future or doom.

Our nation has become too divided. Too many Americans feel like they've lost hope. Crime is harming too many citizens. Racial tensions have gotten worse, not better. This isn't the American Dream we all want for our children.

The rise of terrorism threatens the way of life for all civilized people, and we must do everything in our power to keep it from our shores.

If we deliver this change, the future is limitless and we will Make America Great Again for everyone.

One man announces the truth in some place, he calls for the solution of a certain question, he establishes a goal and forms a movement that is to serve the realization of his intention:

"Look at the solution, not the problem. Learn to focus on what will give results."

Thus an association or a party is formed which, according to its program, is intended to bring about either the abolition of existing evils or the establishment of a specific condition in the future.

I propose a different vision for America, one where we can break up Washington's rigged system, and empower all Americans to achieve their dreams. In our vision, we will put America First.

Once such a movement has been called to life it practically holds a certain right of priority.

Now it should be a matter of course that all people who intend to fight for the same goal, join such a movement and thus increase its strength, in order to be better able to serve the common intention in this way.

This is a time, perhaps more than ever, for strong leadership, love and compassion.

See yourself as victorious--look at the solution, not the problem.

Be tough, be strong, be tenacious.

Only short-sighted narrow-mindedness, as unfortunately is often found in the circles of our business men, can fail to acknowledge that in the long run there can be no economic rise for them also, and with this no economic profit, as long as the inner national solidarity of the nation is not restored.

By far the greatest bulk of the political 'education,' which in this case one may rightly define with the word propaganda,' is the work of the press. It is the press above all else that carries out this 'work of enlightenment,' thus forming a sort of school for adults.

Despite the establishment and the media's best efforts, the people are speaking loudly and clearly.

As soon as the wavering masses find themselves confronting too many enemies, objectivity at once steps in, and the question is raised whether actually all the others are wrong and their own nation or their own movement alone is right.

There usually is an easy solution to every problem.

It is not "freedom of the press" when newspapers and others are allowed to say and write whatever they want even if it is completely false!

And in what quantities this poison was produced and distributed! Of course, the lower the spiritual and the moral standard of such an art manufacturer, the greater his fertility, till such a fellow, like a centrifugal machine, splashes his dirt into the faces of others.

But that's not who we are.

To show you how dishonest some of the press is, they took my funny & sarcastic statement that Dennis Rodman should be Ambassador to North Korea as a serious fact.

It was this that made me look upon the great press with increasing caution.

Since the newspapers in question had not a high reputation generally for what reason I myself did not exactly know I saw in them more the products of envious annoyance rather than the results of a fundamental but incorrect opinion.

The press is so totally biased that we have no choice but to take our tough but fair and smart message directly to the people!

Set the example, and you'll be a magnet for the right people. That's the best way to work with people you like.

Passion motivates. Passionate people don't give up; their zeal eliminates fear. Passion can also create business opportunities.

We can't hand over our government to someone whose deepest, darkest secrets may be in the hands of our enemies.

I have built a tremendously successful business, which has created tens of thousands of jobs.

I started full of ambition and love.

I started my business with very little and built it into a great company, with some of the best real estate assets in the World. Amazing!

This was the time in which the greatest change I was ever to experience took place in me.

Remember that fear can be conquered. Go full throttle, and the odds will be on your side.

Realize that fear is the exact opposite of faith. Resolve to be bigger than your problems. Who's the boss?

Have we the right to fight objectively for our self-preservation, or is this rooted in us only subjectively?

We must restore the entrepreneurial spirit of our country. A small business boom.

Ending the theft of American jobs will give us the resources we need to rebuild our military and regain our financial independence and strength.

National security is also immigration security.

We are getting out of the nation-building business, and instead focusing on creating stability in the world.

There are scores of recent migrants inside our borders charged with terrorism. For every case known to the public, there are dozens more.

The fact was not to be denied that ninety per cent of all literary and artistic rubbish and of theatrical humbug was due to a race which hardly amounted to one-hundredth of all inhabitants of the country. Yet it was so.

We must stop importing extremism through senseless immigration policies.

Secondly, however, one should remember the following: every and even the best idea becomes a danger as soon as it pretends to be an end in itself, but in reality only represents a means to an end.

What we have to fight for is the security of the existence and the increase of our race and our people, the nourishment of its children and the preservation of the purity of the blood, the freedom and independence of the fatherland in order to enable our people to mature for the fulfillment of the mission which the Creator of the universe has allotted also to them.

Events may require the use of military force.

We will spend what we need to rebuild our military. It is the cheapest investment we can make. We will develop, build and purchase the best equipment known to mankind. Our military dominance must be unquestioned.

But we will look for savings and spend our money wisely. In this time of mounting debt, not one dollar can be wasted.

We are also going to have to change our trade, immigration and economic policies to make our economy strong again – and to put Americans first again. This will ensure that our own workers, right here in America, get the jobs and higher pay that will grow our tax revenue and increase our economic might as a nation.

We need to think smarter about areas where our technological superiority gives us an edge. This includes 3-D printing, artificial intelligence and cyberwarfare.

Our goal is peace and prosperity, not war and destruction.

A deep feeling of social responsibility towards the establishment of better foundations for our development, combined with the ruthless resolution to destroy the incurable social tumors.

In business, you make decisions that are in your best interests.

Social activity must never see its task in the sentimental conception of welfare work which is as ridiculous as it is futile, but rather in the abolition of those fundamental defects in the organization of our economic and cultural life which must lead to, or at least encourage, the degradation of the individual.

Look at the solution, not the problem. Learn to focus on what will give results.

I will not hesitate to deploy military force when there is no alternative. But if America fights, it must fight to win.

Our friends and enemies must know that if I draw a line in the sand, I will enforce it.

The difficulty of applying the most extreme and brutal means against the criminality endangering the State is to be found, above all, in the prevailing uncertainty concerning the inner motives or causes of the symptoms of our time.

This uncertainty is only too deeply rooted in one's own feeling of being guilty of such tragedies of demoralization.

Be tough, be strong, be tenacious.

I will never send our finest into battle unless necessary – and will only do so if we have a plan for victory.

Do not fear, we are a NATION OF POTENTIAL.

The world is most peaceful, and most prosperous, when America is strongest.

I know people who endlessly 'read' a lot, book after book, letter for letter, yet I would not call them 'well-read.' Of course, they possess a wide 'knowledge,' but their intellect does not know how to distribute and register the material gathered. They lack the ability to distinguish in a book that which is of value and that which is of no value to them; to keep the one in mind forever, and to overlook, if possible, the other, instead of carrying it with them as so much unnecessary ballast. Reading, furthermore, is not a purpose in itself, but a means to an end. It should serve, first of all, to fill in the frame which is formed by the talents and abilities of the individual; thus reading has to furnish the tools and the building material which the individual needs for his profession, no matter whether it serves only the primitive purpose of making a living or whether it presents a higher vocation; secondly, reading has to give a general picture of the world. In both cases it is necessary that the content of what has been read is registered in the mind, not according to the sequence in the book, or according to the sequence in which the books are read, but that, like the small pieces of a mosaic, it is put into the place where it belongs, thus helping to complete the general picture of the world in the mind of the reader. Otherwise, the result will be a terrible muddle of things learned, and this is not only of little value, but it also makes its unfortunate possessor presumptuous and vain. For now he thinks in all sincerity that he is 'educated'; he thinks he knows life and has knowledge; whereas in reality, with each new contribution to this 'education,' he is more and more estranged from the world, till frequently he ends in a sanatorium, or as a 'politician' in parliament.

The horror is beyond description.

Don't believe anything you read in the papers.

I am your voice.

America will continually play the role of peacemaker.

We will always help to save lives and, indeed, humanity itself. But to play that role, we must make America strong again.

And we must make America great again.

But today there is only one thing to discuss: the growing threat of terrorism inside of our borders.

Of highest importance is the training of will power and determination, as well as the cultivation of joy in taking responsibility.

We need to respond to this attack on America as one united people – with force, purpose and determination.

This will prove to be a great time in the lives of ALL Americans. We will unite and we will win, win, win!

If we do that, perhaps this century can be the most peaceful and prosperous the world has ever known.
